You can apply for in-study payment-free status on the National Student Loans Service Centre website to the National Student Loans Service Centre on, or before, the date you return to studies.

Your application was subject to the federal and provincial financial need assessment calculations, based on Canada Student Financial Assistance Program and StudentAid BC's respective policies.

For both calculations, the following information was used to determine your available financial resources:

- ◆ Total family income as reflected on the previous year's tax returns (including spouse/common-law, or parent(s), step-parent, sponsor, or legal guardian, if applicable), or as reported on your application if no tax return was available. (Note: for the federal calculation in 20/21, only the parent(s), step-parent, sponsor or legal guardian income is used, if applicable.)
- ◆ Scholarships and bursaries as reported on your application.
- ◆ Voluntary or targeted contributions specified on the application form.
- ◆ Assets reported by parent(s), step-parent, sponsor, or legal guardian (for dependent students only).
